Investigation nabs three officers in extortion scheme

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
The multi-agency Drug Task Force director, a Bay St. Louis police sergeant and a state probation officer were arrested Friday and charged with extortion.

The arrests were announced Saturday morning at a press conference held by a group of grim law enforcement officials.

Hancock Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said Terry Eley, 36, Margie St., Bay St. Louis; David E. Parker, 38, Ruella St., Bay St. Louis; and James Whitson, 45, Reynor St., Biloxi were arrested and charged with extortion. Bond was set at $100,000 each.

Eley served as the director of the multi-agency drug task force and was a Bay St. Louis police officer; Parker was a Bay St. Louis police department sergeant; and Whitson a state probation officer.

By the time of the news conference, Eley, who was recently named Officer of the Month, had posted bond. Parker and Whitson were still being held in the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility.

Conducting the news conference were District Attorney

Cono Carana, Sheriff Peterson and Bay Police Chief Frank McNeil, with Waveland Police Chief Jimmy Varnell also in attendance.

An investigation on the extortion began Thursday

Waveland aldermen address budget woes

BY RICHARD MEEK

Increased fees for building permits and live bait may be in Waveland's future.

But for the majority of city employees, a pay raise will not.

In a three-plus hour budget workshop on Monday, the Board of Aldermen tentatively agreed to increase fees for building and plumbing permits. The aldermen also agreed to research the possibility of leasing a live bait shop on the Garfield Laidner Pier.

However, the aldermen agreed in executive session to give raises to only four of the city's 89 full-time employees. Employees were expecting anywhere from a three to five percent raise.

Although the board recanted on the raises, the aldermen agreed the city would pay 100 percent of the cost of health insurance for each employee. Previously, the city was kicking in 80 percent of the cost. Individuals must pay the full additional cost of adding family coverage.

The workshop, peppered with sporadic skirmishes between board members that at times involved Mayor John Mason, was held in response to published reports in The Sea Coast Echo that the recently approved budget was tapping into nearly 75 percent of the city's $800,000 in cash reserve. None of the city officials at the time of the report was published said they knew the budget called for the spending of nearly $600,000 of reserves.

So they huddled in City Hall looking for ways to increase revenues, and possibly trim expenses.

Alderman Tommy Longo, who took the lead in suggesting revenue producing ideas, said the city should raise its building and sewage permits to what is allowed by state law and the Southern Building and Planning Code. Currently, the city charges $10 for each building permit, $5 lower than what the state allows.

The same holds true for the plumbing fees. According to city officials, the city is also one of the lowest along the Gulf Coast in charging inspection fees.

1st place winner

Eight entries were received, but only one could be called a winner. Lauren and Sherida Kihneman, 11118 Northshore Dr., Bay St. Louis, won first place in the scarecrow contest sponsored by the City of Bay St. Louis in conjunction with the Bay St. Louis Development Foundation. They will receive four buffet tickets from Casino Magic. Second place winner was Wendy Lafontaine, 210 South Necaise, Bay St. Louis, who will receive a $25 gift certificate from Sav-A-Center. Third place winner Andrea Coote, 414 Main St., Bay St. Louis will receive a $20 gift certificate from WalMart. Both second and third place winners photos can be seen on page 8A. Jubilee to leave anxieties in wake

BY ED LEPOMA

The Jubilee Casino barge will soon slip out of its berth at Bayou Caddy (as of Saturday evening, the barge had not yet sailed) and will be towed to what it hopes are more tranquil and profitable waters in Greenville, Miss.

In its wake, Alpha Gulf Coast, which operated the troubled gambling venture in Hancock County, is leaving behind a trail of lawsuits and unpaid taxes.

Jubilee's departure also left the majority of its 600-plus workforce drifting toward the holiday season on the state's unemployment rolls.

The State Gaming Commission Thursday approved Alpha Hospitality Corporation's (Jubilee's parent company) request to swap sites, after Alpha posted surety bonds for back property taxes it owes in Hancock County.

Alpha officials immediately announced that the 61,000-square foot Jubilee barge would leave the dock at Bayou Caddy at the stroke of midnight Friday, and would be towed up the Mississippi River to the Delta, in Greenville. But shifting winds delayed the departure until at least Saturday. The 300-mile trip is expected to take 10 days, depending on the tides and traffic on the river.

Once the Jubilee arrives, estimated around Nov. 6, it would be docked next to the yacht club on Lake Ferguson, and the Cotton Club boat will close down, and prepare for the voyage to Bayou Caddy.

Alpha is supposed to be in the final stages of buying the Cotton Club paddlewheeler, but as late as Friday, the sale could not be confirmed.

The Washington County Tax Assessor has appraised the Cotton Club boat, the slot machines and equipment aboard at $13

Faith, determination helps overcome spinal cord injury

Come Halloween, Dawn (Lang) Carver will be dressed in a witch's costume, handing out candy to trick-or-treaters arriving at her parent's house off Lower Bay Road.

Less than a year ago, Carver couldn't stand or walk, and she had little movement in her arms and hands. She couldn't talk and a ventilator kept her alive.

Carver's world as she knew it came crashing down around her the evening of Nov. 6, 1994. Before that, she was living a life full of hope and happiness.

Carver, a 1990 graduate of Hancock North Central, landed a job at Casino Magic, shortly after it became the first casino to open in Hancock County.

It was a fun job. She walked around the slot machines, and paid off people who hit any big jackpots.

At Casino Magic, she also met and fell in love with Steve Carver, a dealer who, left St. Petersburg, Fla., to come to the coast and work at the casino.

They were married June 4, 1994, and just five-months later, Carver was in a car accident that is still affecting her life.

She had gone Christmas shopping on a Sunday evening with her mom, Claudia Lang, and her sister, Pamela Newman.

Her mom was behind the wheel when she steered the car out of the parking lot of the shopping center off Dunbar and turned left to approach Highway 90. Her sister was seated in the front on the passenger side, and Carver was in the back seat.

Just as their car turned onto Dunbar, another car coming north about 60 miles an hour broadsided the driver's side of Homeowners in the Cedar Point area will have access to city sewer service early next month, as a major extension of the system goes on line.

The project should take 60

In addition, a few residents will gain city water service for the first time, with a 1,500-foot extension of water lines along North Beach Boulevard.

The area at issue includes part of North Beach Boulevard, and Cedar Ridge Avenue, Har-

Magic objects to Bay plan

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Casino Magic raised major concerns Monday about the proposed Bay St. Louis comprehensive plan, saying the long-range ideas clash with their own in several cases.

Comments and questions from Len Krick, Magic's vice president for planning and development, came at the tail end of a two-hour "workshop" on a plan that's been on the drawing board for more than a year.

Krick and others in the roomful of observers were given only a few minutes to address council, which had convened to begin their final series of workshops shaping the plan.

Council agreed to meet again Wednesday, at 7 p.m., to tackle one of the most controversial sections of the plan: a "resort" district encompassing Casino Magic and adjoining properties that haven't been zoned since they were annexed five years ago.

Among other points Monday, Krick noted that the proposal designates a 42-acre track of Magic property for "public" use. It's in the proposed future land use map as an area devoted to schools, playgrounds, and ball fields, but it's zoned for residential use.

While city school officials have told Magic they're interested in the property, there is no firm offer on the table. The land at issue stretches behind Bay High School, and consumes a large portion of frontage on Casino Magic Drive.

Krick said Tuesday while there are no firm casino plans for the property, it could conceivably become a nine-hole adjunct to the 18-hole golf course under construction elsewhere on Magic land. Or, he said, Magic could develop the land for residential purposes.

Whatever is in the cards for the track, he added, it currently serves as collateral for a loan Magic obtained to build its golf course. Magic paid some $500,000 for the property, he said.

Krick said adopting the plan as-is, the city would essentially be rezoning the property from R-1 (residential) to "public use" status. He also asked for a solid definition of "public use" designation.

Krick also raised questions concerning the fate of a large tract the casino corporation owns at the foot of the Bay Bridge -- formerly known as the Pete Fountain property. Although Magic bought the property as a proposed casino site years ago, they dropped that proposal in the face of massive public opposition. Krick said Tuesday the best use of the land could turn out to be a site for a Magic corporate headquarters building -- sometime in the distant future.

There are no current plans to locate a casino at the site, he said.

During the workshop, it was noted that the property currently carries C-3 (commercial) zoning -- a designation that wouldn't change in the future land use plan. But council member James Thriffley said there's serious question over what zoning a portion of the property, between Beach Boulevard and the Bay, carries.

Although the maps show the land as C-3, Thriffley said some argue that the water-side of the property actually is designated as R-5. That designation allows almost no construction, aside from piers and gazebos. Thriffley asked City Attorney John Scaffide to render an opinion on the zoning status of the property.

Krick said Magic bought the property with the understanding the entire parcel had commercial zoning. "Naturally we're interested in that. Not to imply that we plan to build anything in the future," said Krick. But, he added, the casino wants a solid understanding of the status of the land.

Meanwhile, Krick also noted that the city's proposed transportation plan shows a major roadway extending Casino Magic Drive to Joe's Bayou Road -- a route that would cut through the middle of Magic's $1 million RV Park.

Throughout the evening, city officials sought to down-play the significance of the proposed maps that reflect the text of the comprehensive plan, although they admitted their explanations may be "confusing" to the general public.

"This is sort of a projection of how things might appear in 25 years," Scaffide said of the future land use map. "...If things to continue to progress in the future ... it might look something like this in 25 years."

That's a less aggressive definition of the proposed map than others have offered as the plan has been developed. City officials have said while the proposed land use map does not constitute a "zoning" of property, it will serve as the basis for the city's future zoning map.

Mayor Eddie Favre said last week that once the land use planning map is adopted, it'll be difficult to deviate from its designations in drawing the new zoning map.

Planner Les Fillingame said Monday, however, that even with the planning map, the city will have a difficult burden to change any zoning, because state law requires the city prove that existing zoning is either a mistake, or outdated by land use changes.

So, he added, showing a change on the map doesn't give the city the statutory right to change zoning.

Council, surrounded by the maps at issue, discussed tiny details on it as well as major concepts. They appeared to reach a consensus on a couple of points.

One apparent point of agreement was that most of the city's shoreline should be designated R-5, the zone that doesn't allow construction of any substance. The only exceptions to that general rule would be the water-side land adjoining commercially-zoned property downtown.

Favre argued, unsuccessfully, that the waterfront adjoining the casino-resort area should carry a designation allowing "compatible" uses with that district, beyond what's allowed in an R-5 district.

One controversial part of the map that brought several citizens to the meeting involves a concept that would allow a high-tech industrial park in an area adjoining Pecan Park and Spanish Acres subdivisions. The city several years ago granted a "special exception" to allow such a project on the tract, but the designation disappeared when the owner didn't follow through with his plans.

Residents who fought that battle unsuccessfully years ago are ready to fight it again, contending that even strict design guidelines would not produce the low-impact campus that planners envision.

As council was about to adjourn its session, the audience was told the city may, or may not, decide to call a public hearing on the final plan before adopting it.

The Planning and Zoning Commission held such a hearing last month, and there were a series of public workshops held in the early stages of the plan's formation.

Council president Tad Black noted that the city has had various comprehensive plans under study for some four years, and he said adopting a new zoning ordinance will be a tougher task than that. "Another 10 years," moaned one citizen.

"Here we go again. Come back next week," said one citizen leaving the meeting.

"They're trying to wear us out, and I guarantee you: tonight, they wore me out," said another.

Children's story hour

"Harvest" will be the theme of the children's story hour at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library Wednesday, Nov. 1 at 10:30 a.m.

The Dream Tree, The Hare and the Tortoise and None-in-One Grr! Grr! are books to be read. Children will see a finger play and a movie and a move and make scarecrows. Refreshments will be served, and there will be a raffle and an educational packet to take home.

Weekly story hours are held September through May. Programs last approximately one hour.

The Kiln Library hosts a story hour every other Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. These programs last approximately 30 minutes, and refreshments are served.

Programs and activities are designed for pre-school-age children three to five years old who are not part of a nursery or pre-school group.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Tuesday, Oct. 31, all Democratic qualified electors in District Four are reminded about the run-off primary election for board of supervisor.

The voting precincts are West Shoreline Park, Kiln West, South Bay and City Hall.

Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Remember, those who voted Republican primary, in either or both of the August 8 and 29 elections, are not eligible to vote in this special run-off primary election.

Every vote does count, so if you are qualified, please vote Tuesday.

Tuesday is Halloween, and lots of things are happening.

We have several of them listed on Page 1B of this issue of The Echo.

One in which I will be involved in is the annual Hancock County Historical Society's Cedar Rest Cemetery Tour.

The tour begins at 5 p.m. on Tuesday and will have residents portraying citizens of our past.

There will be about a dozen portraying former citizens of various endeavors within the community.

I know I enjoyed the previous tours, and I am really looking forward to this year.

I am planning on portraying my great-grandfather James Cuevas who arrived in Shieldsborough (Bay St. Louis) in 1849 with his parents from Cat Island.

I can talk for hours about my family, but will have to condense it down to about two minutes.

There is a donation of $1 per person for the tour and proceeds will be used by the Historical Society for community projects.

I hope to see you Halloween night.

Many of our youngsters will be out on Tuesday night trick-or-treating, so it is important for everyone driving to be extremely careful.

I urge parents to keep a close eye on their youngsters as they go about town trick-or-treating.

It is set to be a fun night, so we need to try and avoid any mishaps.

I realize there are many haunted houses and parties on tap for Tuesday night.

One I would like to mention is Hancock Medical Center and the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139's party at the hospital's cafeteria.

All Halloween ghosts and goblins, witches, ballerinas and princes, etc. are invited to the hospital's cafeteria for free goodies and snacks.

The time at HMC is from 6 to 8 p.m. This is an annual event, and the youngsters really enjoy themselves.

Pass Christian school receives computer grant

Mississippi is receiving $800,000 for computer access programs in five school systems, the state's United States senators announced.

U.S. Senators Thad Cochran and Trent Lott said the U.S. Department of Commerce was making the grant to the Mississippi Department of Education. The five school systems involved are Greenville, Pass Christian, West Jasper County, Calhoun County and Wilkinson County.

The agency said additional funding for the $1,615,323 project would come from state and local sources.

The project is entitled "Connecting Communities: The Mississippi Family Math and Science Network Project" and is a learning partnership among parents, children, schools, libraries and communities to gain access to computer information networks.

Students and teachers will be trained in network installation, operation and educational applications.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Taylor against sending American troops to Bosnia

After returning from a National Security Committee visit to the former Yugoslavia, I am convinced, now more than ever, that American troops should not be sent to Bosnia.

I met with our soldiers at border posts overlooking Serbia and I had private conversations with senior non-coms and officers. Publicly they are ready and capable of doing whatever they are ordered to do. Privately they question the mission and our objectives. They don't think that the cost in American lives is worth paying for peace that will not last.

Last week, during floor debates of the 1996 Defense Appropriations Bill, I expressed my strong opposition to the President's proposal to send 25,000 of our nation's young men into the most dangerous place in the world, Bosnia.

I especially oppose sending troops to Bosnia without congressional approval. Article I,

Section 8 of the Constitution of the United States gives that power to commit American troops to war, solely to Congress.

The tradition of presidents of both parties is to commit American forces, then once the young men are in harm's way, come to Congress and ask for money. That is wrong. That decision must be made by Congress before American troops are fired on.

This decision to commit troops is up to Congress, and it is a job from which they cannot run away.

Congress must make this decision before the first American soldier is put in danger. One American life lost in this war would be one life too many.

My visit to the former Yugoslavia with fellow members of the National Security Committee has convinced me now more than ever that we should not commit our men to Bosnia.

FROM THE STATE AUDITOR

SCHOOLS
Q Is SB 2301 or SB 3024, Laws of 1995, the controlling legislation that amends Section 37-7-301 which deals with local school fund-raising activities?

A Senate Bill 2301 was effective as of its passage, March 31, 1995, and was the law until July 1, 1995. On that date Senate Bill 3024 went into effect and became law from that time forward. (Attorney General's opinion to Patterson dated July 27, 1995)

NOTE: Senate Bill 3024 which is now in effect does not include the new amendments and new language included in 2301 concerning school fund-raising activities. Please review 37-7-301 as amended.

Q May a school district issue a contract as a teacher/coach and make the reemployment of said teacher contingent on his willingness to fulfill coaching responsibilities?

A All extra duties together with all compensation may be included in the original contract for teaching duties at the discretion of the school board. (Attorney General's opinion to Hilburn, dated June 29, 1995)

Q May a school district assume any existing bonded debt incurred by another governmental entity on property acquired by the school district?

No. However, although the indebtedness must remain the primary liability of the governmental entity which created the debt, as a part of a purchase agreement a school may pay a lump sum or periodic installments to satisfy the indebtedness. (Attorney General's opinion to Kuehnle dated July 11, 1995)

Q May a school district acquire property and then lease the property to another entity?

A Section 37-7-301(aa) allows for the purchase of property only upon a finding that such property is "necessary and desirable" for school purposes. Section 37-7-471 et seq., is the authority to lease school property.

Such a lease presupposes that the school board has found and determined by resolution that such property "is no longer needed for school or related purposes and is not to be used in the operation of the schools of the district." (Attorney General's opinion to Kuehnle dated July 11, 1995)

Q May residents of a line school district vote in the county superintendent of education election in the county in which they reside?

A Yes. (Attorney General's opinion to Pace dated July 11, 1995)

Safety belt use increases

Mississippians in increasing numbers are taking the potentially lifesaving steps of using safety belts in automobiles and helmets when operating motorcycles, according to the latest survey by Mississippi State University's Social Science Research Center. Child protective device use, however, has declined.

The survey, commissioned by the Mississippi Division of Public Safety Planning, indicated that safety belt use increased from 43.32 percent in 1994 to 46 percent, child protective device use decreased from 47.6 to 44 percent and motorcycle rider helmet use increased from 98.03 to 98.76 percent. The safety belt findings were based upon 49,518 observations; the child protective device findings upon 6,958 and the helmet findings upon 216.

"Over the past three years, we've seen a sharp increase in safety belt use, and motorcycle use of helmets has continued to pattern of more than 95 percent," said Donald O'Cain, Public Safety Planning's executive director and governor's representative for highway safety. "Although child protective device use has dropped, it's still well ahead of the 1992 rate."

Jim Landrum, Social Science Research Center research scientist, said that a 1992 survey indicated only 24.8 percent of Mississippi motorists were using safety belts and only 17.2 percent of children were buckled into child protective devices.

"This was an 85.4 percent increase in safety belt use in three years and a 155.8 percent increase in child protective device use," Landrum noted.

O'Cain attributed much of the increase to educational efforts by the Mississippi Association of Highway Safety Leaders, a statewide group of volunteers interested in highway safety, and legislation that requires safety belt and child protective device use with fines for failure to comply, "but Mississippi motorists also deserve considerable credit for realizing that these protective devices can save lives and prevent serious injuries in motor vehicle crashes... and matching the awareness with action."

Division of Public Safety Planning studies indicate that the lives of more than 300 drivers and passengers could be saved each year by the use of safety belts and child protective devices.

"All motorists, even 'safe drivers,' can be involved in motor vehicle crashes," O'Cain noted, "and it's the 'human collision' that usually kills or inflicts serious injuries in a crash. This occurs when vehicle occupants not using safety belts or child protective devices are thrown into the vehicle's windshield, steering wheel, doors, dashboard, other interior surfaces or other passengers."

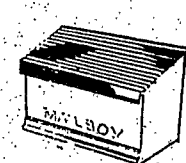

These surfaces become instruments of death when individuals are thrown against them with the forces generated in a crash. Also, those who are not buckled up can be thrown from the vehicle and hit the pavement with a force sufficient to cause death or serious injury.

"A safety belt or child protective device prevents this 'human collision' by holding you in place, and they spread the force of the crash over the strongest parts of the body," he said.

"Buckling up is one of the easiest and best safety steps motorists can take, even if your vehicle is equipped with airbags. Airbags can reduce your chances of being killed in frontal crashes by 20 to 40 percent, but your chances of survival increase to as high as 55 percent if you also use a lap and shoulder safety belt. In rear, side and rollover crashes, a safety belt is your best protection."

"Even parents who cannot afford child protective devices have no valid excuse for not having them," O'Cain said. "Organizations in every area of the state have child safety seat loan programs, and most law enforcement agencies can identify these organizations."

"While increased use statistics are impressive, what is not impressive," O'Cain said, "is that the lives of many Mississippians are being saved, and motorists across our state are being spared from permanent injuries. With so much to gain by the simple act of buckling up, I hope all motorists will take this common-sense step."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Veterans homes now accepting applications

Editor's note: The following is a copy of a letter received from State Representative J. P. Compretta which should be of interest to veterans.

Dear Rep. Compretta:
Request your assistance in informing Mississippi veterans that we are now accepting applications for admission to the new State Veterans Homes in Collins, Kosciusko (also Domiciliary), and Oxford as well as for the home in Jackson. Names are placed on waiting lists in the order that applications are received; therefore, those desiring beds should submit applications as soon as possible.

We anticipate that we will begin admitting residents at the Collins and Oxford homes approximately April 1, 1996 and the Kosciusko home approximately June 1, 1996.

Applications and information may be obtained from County Veterans Service Officers; the State Veterans Home at 4607 Lindbergh Drive, Jackson, MS 39209, phone (601) 354-7377; or by contacting this office.

Thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,
Jack Stephens
Executive Secretary
State Veterans Affairs Board
Jackson, Miss.

Police should use caution when responding to calls

Dear Editor:

What will it take to slow down the police in the Bay St. Louis residential areas when responding to calls?

We appreciate and commend the efforts of the police to keep Bay St. Louis a safe place in which to live, but the excessive speeds used throughout the town are putting innocent people at risk.

In conversation with the chief of police, he indicated that an increase in 10-15 miles over the speed limit should normally be adhered to.

As residents on Main Street, we see excessive speeds, minimal caution being used at intersections, sirens not being used consistently and overtaking of cars common.

We realize the police have a job to do and give them the benefit of the doubt, but remind them that the safety of others may be jeopardized in their pursuits.

Respectfully,
Jim and Lori Lewis

BREWER'S WORLD

By Jimmie Brewer

The big monster mash and graveyard bash is just around the corner. Halloween is the time when psychopaths escape from their roach-infested cells. It's the time when Jason embeds a large axe in the middle of his forehead and goes out searching for a few candy bars.

The dead will begin digging their way out, and parading around with snakes and worms oozing from their mouths and ears. It's gonna be a hoot.

After giving it much consideration, I believe I have come up with the perfect Halloween costume. I'm gonna dress up as a middle-aged, slightly overweight, hair-uncombed, gray-bearded dude. I'll be wearing a pair of frayed boxer shorts, carrying a large do-it-all remote control in one hand, and a half-eaten tin of sardines in the other. It's a part I'm perfectly suited to portray, and one which I've practiced on several occasions. Trust me folks, it is an extremely frightening sight.

For some, Halloween can be a spooky and dangerous experience. But not for the folks in Hancock County. Lucky for you, you have Uncle Brewer to guide you safely through the night, that is, of course, if you follow my safety tips.

Tip no. 1: Do not accept an apple if you find a large metal object protruding from one end. Especially if you can make out the logo and it reads Gillette. That should alert you that something might be amiss.

Tip no. 2: If a large, sweaty, unshaved dude shows up at your door with a Marlboro dangling from his mouth who is carrying a bag in one hand and an oversized tool in the other, do not be alarmed. It is probably Boudreaux on his way home from a gator hunt.

Tip no. 3: If when you get home from trick-or-treating and discover that someone put a Tootsie Roll in your bag that was wrapped in a used Bazooka bubble gum wrapper, it would be wise to inspect it closely, as not everything is always what it appears to be.

Tip no. 4: If O.J. Simpson rings your door bell wearing a ski cap and some very expensive gloves, complaining of being hot, and asking you for a ride to the Bahamas, with the dog Kato

Library Holiday Tree Gala

The Hancock County Library System and The Library Foundation of Hancock County will co-sponsor a Holiday Tree Gala Sunday, Dec. 3 from 1-5 p.m. at the headquarters facility in Bay St. Louis.

Local businesses and organizations are being asked to participate in the gala by exhibiting a tree in the library. The trees can be live or artificial and can be decorated with items indicative of the business or organization or with traditional decorations.

There will be areas for six-foot floor trees and three-foot tabletop trees, with or without lights. The locations are given on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Any business or organization wishing to exhibit a tree should contact Janice Parrott at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library at 467-5282.

erson Court, and Blakemore, Pogo, Engman, DeSoto, Thomas, and Julia streets, said Public Works Director Ron Vanney.

On North Beach, the lines run just past the last dwelling, said Vanney. It stops some 1,000 to 1,500 feet short of the undeveloped tract that has been proposed as a casino development site.

Residents of the area will receive letters in a few days notifying them they may request tap-ins to the system. The city code allows six months to complete the switch from septic tanks to the public lines.

Vanney said in addition to the tie-in fee the city charges, homeowners will be responsible for costs of running lines from their homes to the city lines, and for connecting with the municipal system.

In addition, homeowners will have six months to have their old septic tanks filled in, Vanney said.

Homeowners in the area should contact City Hall Annex officials concerning the tie-in procedure. Vanney said his department crews will schedule tie-ins on a "first come, first served" basis.

"We're anxious to get everyone on" the system, said Vanney. The area's soils are not suitable for septic tank wastewater disposal, officials say, and lack of access to the municipal system has stifled growth of the area.

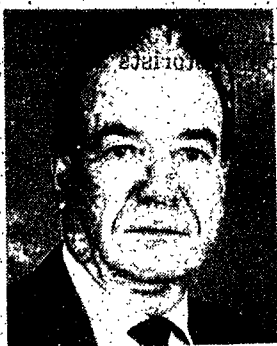

Bay St. Louis annexed the Cedar Point area some five years ago.

Work on the project was covered under a $1.3 million contract the city awarded GM&7 Construction Co. last November.

The contract also covered new sewer lines for 75 to 100 residents of portions of the Old Spanish Trail, St. Charles, Citizen and Washington streets, and Bayou Galere Road.

Vanney said work in that area should be complete by the first of the year -- but work to repave Old Spanish Trail should begin within 10 days. "We are very sorry for the inconvenience," Vanney said of the Trail's current condition.

Supervisors to review library contract

BY ED LEPOMA

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is expected to let a $32,000-plus contract for a multi-media computer system to link county libraries despite a businessman's request to throw out all bids and readvertise.

Supervisors will likely hear arguments when they meet in regular session at 9 a.m. Nov. 6, a day before the general elections.

Bay St. Louis businessman, T.R. Alonzo III, contends his firm, Exact Solutions International, was the low bidder on the library project.

But, County Librarian Prima Plauche, the Library's Board of Trustees and a special consultant who looked at the three bids submitted, conclude there is ample reason to award the project to the second lowest bidder.

Meanwhile, Plauche said she and library trustees will await approval of supervisors before awarding the $32,000-plus project.

Alfonso wrote to supervisors Oct. 17 to contend his firm should have been awarded the bid to install a CD-ROM tower and the associated network and computer software for four work stations that will link all county libraries. He sent a certified copy of his letter to State Attorney General Michael Moore.

Alfonso charged "collusion, unfairness and extreme preferential treatment was used to award the contract and ignored our low bid."

Not so, Plauche contends. She said state law provides avenues for disqualifying bids when the bidder does not comply with specific requests in the proposal for bids, and when it can't be determined that the low bidder will perform the services required by the proposal.

Last Thursday, the Library's Board of Trustees met to review bids that were opened at an Oct. 2 supervisors' meeting. Trustees agreed with a consultant's findings that the low bidder submitted an "incomplete" bid.

At the supervisors' meeting, three sealed bids were opened, and discussed by Plauche and supervisors.

Exact Solutions International, describing itself as a minority-owned firm located in Bay St. Louis and headed by T.R. Alfonso III, submitted the low bid of $24,037.50. Next lowest bidder was Education Solutions, a Rockford, Ill., based firm, at $32,161, and Ameridata, Inc., of Jackson, Miss., at $48,908.

Plauche told Supervisors that, Exact Solutions, did not comply with bid requirements, as outlined in the proposal.

She explained that Exact Solutions submitted only two pages, a cover sheet and a recap sheet as their bid document, but the entire, complicated document consisting of a minimum of pages 1-31, was required for bid compliance.

Board Attorney Gerald Gex asked Plauche to submit for the record documentation on why Exact Solutions did not comply with bid specifications, as required by law.

In a letter submitted to Gex Oct. 20, Evelyn Johnson, Chairman of the county library's Board of Trustees, said the Board met Oct. 19 to review the bids.

After the Oct. 2 meeting, she explained that Plauche submitted the three bids to Alan Withoff, a consultant employed by the Mississippi Library Commission, who inspected and reviewed the bid documents.

"It was his findings that while Exact Solutions International was the low bidder, their response to the Request for Proposals was incomplete."

On Oct. 10, Withoff wrote Plauche to concur, "you have chosen the best vendor."

Withoff said while Exact Solutions submitted the lowest bid, "their response to your Request for Proposal was incomplete, and it was impossible for me to ascertain exactly what they would be providing your library system."

Withoff said through his past contact with libraries in and out of the state, he found two that had purchased equipment from Educational Solutions.

"Both libraries have been very satisfied with the quality and the support that they have been given," said Withoff. "I strongly believe that you have chosen the best supplier for your network CD-ROM tower," he concluded.

It was the recommendation of the Library's Board of Trustees and Withoff to accept Educational Solutions "as the most responsive bidder in compliance with the bid specifications," Johnson wrote Gex.

Plauche submitted another letter to Gex dated Oct. 24, recommending further reasoning for rejecting Exact Solutions' low bid.

She quoted bid instructions contained in page 10 of the bid document which stated in part:

"The owner (Library Board) reserves the right to conduct investigations as it deems necessary to assist in the evaluation of any bid and to establish the experience, responsibility, references, reputation, business ethics, history, qualifications, and financial ability of the bidders."

Plauche pointed out the purpose of having this clause in the bid document was so the Library Board could be satisfied that the bidder has the experience, resources and commercial reputation needed to perform the work and provide supporting services once the computerized system is installed.

Plauche said Educational Solutions has provided the library system with the required information documenting its ability to perform according to contract specifications, "and is willing to provide additional financial and business experience and background information if necessary."

She said Exact Solutions did not provide "substantiating information" that it could perform the contract.

She said, from the bid submitted, it appeared that Alfonso was bidding on a Novell or Microsoft operating system, but the Library Board's purchasing agent contacted two officials of Novell who "state they have no record of Mr. Alfonso or Exact Solutions International being licensed by them for resale of their products, nor is he a certified network engineer."

Efforts were continuing to contact Microsoft officials, Plauche said.

She concluded her letter to Gex by saying, "It is unfortunate that taxpayers' funds and time by staff and legal representation for the county was lost on this important project...because of a bid submitted that was non-comforming."

"However, it does indicate that, by following the purchasing laws and procedures of Mississippi, the county, the library system and most important, the citizens of Hancock County are getting quality products and services."

million, and Alpha is attempting to buy out private investors.

As a condition of departure, Alpha posted two surety bonds totaling $403,000 to guarantee payment of the balance it owes Hancock County in 1994 property taxes, and the taxes for 1995 that will come due in February of 1996.

Also on the books in Hancock County, is a lien of $154,000 against Alpha by the State Tax Commission for tax deficiencies uncovered in a routine audit of sales and use taxes.

In Washington County, the Cotton Club was not in arrears on its 1994 taxes, but Alpha has agreed to post a $284,000 bond before it leaves the dock to cover what the Cotton Club owes there in 1995 taxes.

The Gaming Commission did not set dates for the opening of the casinos, but Jubilee's general manager, John Kingsbury, said they were shooting for Nov. 21 (Thanksgiving week) to open the Greenville site.

The 27,600-square-foot Cotton Club boat is expected to take five to six days to make the trip south from Greenville to Waveland.

Estimates are the Cotton Club will open for business in Hancock County around Dec. 6.

In announcing the closing of the Jubilee last week, Kingsbury said plans were to use as many Jubilee employees as possible during the move and grand openings of each property.

But, Jubilee employees who have been "temporarily laid off" during the transition swarmed to the local unemployment office Wednesday to register for weekly benefits.

Kingsbury said he expected a "minimal turnover" of employees during the transition period, and he has promised that seniority and insurance benefits would remain in force during the layoff.

Kingsbury and other local Jubilee officials would not give the Echo a definite count of how many employees would rely on weekly unemployment checks from now until the casino reopens in Hancock County.

Alpha officials decided on a vessel and site swap, contending the larger Jubilee barge would be more profitable in the Delta market, which sits between gambling casinos in Vicksburg and Tunica.

The Jubilee boasts 34,000 square feet of gambling space with about 869 licensed slot machines and 52 gaming tables. The Cotton Club contains about 27,000 square feet for gambling, around 550 slot machines and 34 gaming tables.

The plans are for the Jubilation restaurant to remain at Lakeshore, and Alpha plans to build a new shoredside restaurant and a special-events building at the site. These would be connected to the vessel by a skywalk.

After a one-time inspection fee of $10, the city does not charge for additional inspections. City Clerk Debbie Conrvey said the city can charge up to $10 for each additional inspection.

"We're not making enough money to cover our inspections," Longo said. "I just can't see us continuing to lose money."

"The feedback I'm getting is that we're low (on inspection and permit fees)."

Conrvey estimated the increased fees would bring in an additional $3,000.

"That won't get us the revenue ($600,000) we're looking for," Mason said.

To which Conrvey replied, "This is something we can do and do it now. Every little dollar helps."

Longo then raised the idea of finding a company to open a live bait shop on the Ladner pier, with the city receiving rent and possibly a share of the revenue. Longo said he has talked with several entities along the coast and in Alabama, and said some of those shops have added $50,000 to city's coffers.

"In no way am I talking about the city getting into the live bait business," Longo said. "But maybe leasing (the shop)."

"Nobody in Waveland does live bait," he added, warning to the subject. "People don't (dig) their live bait anymore. This business is a goldmine."

The aldermen also discussed raising the annual pier fees, and to close it down at certain hours during the winter. The Ladner pier is the only one in the area with a 24-hour security guard. No decision was reached.

"I don't want to make the charges so high that certain families can't go," Longo said.

The mayor and aldermen agreed the city needs to do a better job of marketing the pier.

Aldermen Jay Fleuriot drew the wrath of the mayor and other aldermen when he suggested the board and mayor take a 10 percent cut.

"What I have to say is painful but I think we should take the lead and elected officials should take a 10 percent cut," Fleuriot said. "We can talk raising fees. I want to talk strict budget cutting."

"Our administrative costs are on the fat side," he added.

Fleuriot proposed the board take a look at cutting back the number of cellular phones (nine) the city pays for and mileage to city officials.

Longo accused Fleuriot of making the statement to "grab headlines."

Mason, who earns $32,000 a year as Waveland's first full-time mayor, told Fleuriot, "I don't know about you, but I have to make a living (off of what the city pays him)."

Mason, however, is the owner of Mason's Tire and Automotive on Highway 90 in Bay St. Louis.

The aldermen, all who have full-time jobs elsewhere, are paid $780 a month by the city. Longo said the majority of his money has gone back into the city to help less fortunate individuals pay for city services or to put in a sewage or water line.

There was no further debate on the proposed pay cuts.

The aldermen also discussed raising fines for traffic violations and misdemeanor charges, and raising garbage fees. Fleuriot also suggested annexing areas off of Highway 603. Any annexation questions must first be answered by city attorneys, however.

By meeting's end, the aldermen, by virtue of eliminating pay raises to all but four unnamed employees, had reduced its budget shortfall by $169,000, resulting in a nearly $400,000 surplus at the end of fiscal year 1995-96.

"We are not in a critical situation," Longo said. "We have money available if we have a disaster."

"It's almost unfair to people to keep $800,000 in reserve. The more should be put back into the community. If we keep too much, it's unfair."

Fleuriot, however, quickly countered, saying the city is "spending too much of our reserve. At this rate, in two years, we won't have any reserve."

Aldermen Al Kingston said "it depends on what the public wants us to do with the money. I am getting tired of people saying we are coming up short."

Board members will officially adopt the resolution concerning paying the insurance of city employees at its Nov. 8 meeting. Also, any other revenue-producing or cost-cutting measures would have to be adopted at that meeting.

Oral surgeon joins HMC medical staff

Hancock Medical Center announces the addition of oral and maxillofacial surgeon Richard K. Akin, DDS to the active medical staff.

Dr. Akin recently opened an office at 1013 Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis (across from Key West Inn and Waffle House). He maintains an office at 3501 Behrman Place in New Orleans and is also affiliated with Ochsner Clinic, Department of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery.

He is a graduate of Loyola University of New Orleans and Loyola University School of Dentistry. He completed oral surgery internship and residency at Charity Hospital of Louisiana in New Orleans and was chief resident of oral and maxillofacial surgery from 1970-71.

He received board certification in oral and maxillofacial surgery in 1973 and is a Fellow of the American Academy of Cosmetic Surgery. He is active in the American Association of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgeons.

Dr. Akin is on the teaching staff at Ochsner Clinic and Ochsner Foundation Hospital. He served as clinical associate professor at the Louisiana State University School of Dentistry/Department of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery.

Several of his articles have been published in the Journal of Oral Surgery, and he has completed numerous courses in continuing education.

Dr. Akin and his wife reside in Metairie and Bay St. Louis.

CHANCERY CLERK • HANCOCK COUNTY

As a fifth generation Hancock County native, I have an understanding of the changes that have shaped the county in recent years. As a professional, I have an appreciation for the diverse businesses in the county ... whether agricultural, industrial, technical or governmental. And as a resident, with my wife and two sons, I have a deep commitment to the people who have chosen, as I have, to call Hancock County home.

Since graduating from USM in 1980, I have served in many capacities with the state of Mississippi and for contractors of the federal government.

I know the responsibilities that accompany the Chancery Clerk position and can offer the following experience that will immediately benefit the office:

- Budgeting
- Contracts Administration
- Planning/Scheduling
- Personnel Management
- Public Relations
- Auditing
- Purchasing
- Inventory Control
- Receiving
- Labor Law

I ask you to consider my qualifications and vote for Timothy A. (Tim) Kellar on November 7th as your Chancery Clerk.

To All My Good Friends and Supporters:

I fought for your privilege and your right to cast YOUR VOTE and to have them counted properly. I now ask you to continue to support my efforts and my candidacy for District 4 Supervisor for Hancock County.

My opponent, Steven Seymour, is a nice young man, whom I feel lacks the necessary experiences in life to accept the challenges that the Board of Supervisors requires.

We can no longer stand by and accept an incumbent's son, or any other family member, to succeed him because he feels he owns his political office. I honestly think the people of District 4 are ready to make a change in Hancock County.

I will continue to fight for what is right and equal for ALL Hancock Countians.

PLEASE elect me to represent all of you in District 4. You will see improvements in your roads, ditches and other critical areas, such as the Hancock County Volunteer Fire Department and the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, which have been neglected over the past eight years by the present Supervisor. I need YOUR help to win this fight! Your vote and support will be GREATLY appreciated.

Peterson said he had a "burning sensation" in his stomach since he heard about the scheme.

"This is a tremendous setback for our department with two men down, but fortunately we have enough officers to fill the gap until others are hired to take their place," McNeil said.

As of 5 p.m. Friday all police equipment had been recovered from the two Bay police officers, McNeil said.

"The trustee informed the department of a scheme where he would produce a total of $10,000 to officers and he would be free after his case went to court," Peterson said.

The district attorney was contacted and an investigation began immediately as the inmate was to produce a first payment of $5,000 on Friday morning, officials said.

The inmate was arrested for parole and a drug violation by Eley and had a previous burglary conviction and had just received an inheritance.

Carana said the inmate was assisted in going to a bank and getting the $5,000 of marked bills on Friday morning.

Officers received assistance from the Harrison County sheriff's department with video equipment.

"Around 11 a.m. on Friday, the two Bay police officers drove to the waste water plant and the $5,000 exchanged hands," Peterson reported.

Officials did not elaborate on how Whitson was involved, other than saying upon making the arrests of the three, each had some of the marked money. Of the $5,000 all but $300 was recovered, Peterson reported.

The inmate was to give the second $5,000 when he had gotten out of jail.

Carana said information provided by the arresting officer and a parole officer at a court appearance can make a difference in a judge's decision.

Officials were quick to point out that it was a joint investigation into the scheme.

All said they were concerned about the morale of their departments, with officers being arrested. However, all felt there are very good officers indicating at times there are "bad apples" that have to be removed.

Peterson said he feels those three officers were involved.

Hancock County Chief Investigator Nathan Hoda and David Stepro, DA investigator are in charge of the investigation.

Preliminary hearing dates for the three are to be scheduled.

The officers face up to five years in jail and a fine of $5,000 each, Carana said.

Rubbish site focus of dispute

BY TRACI BONNEY

Commercial garbage dumping fees at the Standard rubbish site are the latest focus of an ongoing dispute between the Hancock County School Board and the Board of Supervisors.

School board trustees, at their Monday meeting, directed attorney Steve Benvenuti to notify the supervisors that they were in violation of their lease because, according to the school board, the county never has paid a fee of $3 per cubic truck yard for commercial garbage dumping.

The fee is specified in paragraph 14 of the lease, which the county has had since the landfill opened in the early 1970s. The lease was renewed in 1989.

County Chancery Clerk Michael Necaie said, "I just think it's been an oversight. I don't think the county deliberately has withheld payment of the fees. If the fee is in the lease, I think we should abide by the contract."

"We've had a good working relationship with the school board over the years, and I think we all want to maintain that relationship."

Les Fillingame, chairman of the Hancock County Solid Waste District's board, said he has invited members of the school board and the supervisors to the waste district's next meeting Wednesday, Nov. 8, 2 p.m., at the Waveland Waste-water District's office.

"I want us to sit down and talk about this before the attorneys go any farther with it," he said.

According to Fillingame, commercial dumping has been occurring at the Standard site virtually from its opening.

The school district's lease with the county defines commercial dumping as garbage pickup by special contract from any business, commercial establishment or industry and carried to, and disposed of, at the site by either the county or private contractor.

Fillingame said, "Based on the definition of commercial dumping in that lease, commercial dumping has been going on since Day One."

He added that the Standard site doesn't have much more life as a landfill, and that the commercial dumping over the years has shortened the life span of the rubbish site by about 15 years.

"It's in its 11th hour," he commented. "The solid waste district's best benefit will be to use the landfill, once it closes, to offer add-on services such as composting and recycling."

Meanwhile, Fillingame said he was curious as to why the issue of the landfill's operation has arisen recently.

"I want to know why — now that the landfill is operating with less violation than it ever has — the issue of its operation has come up," he said. "That's why I invited everyone involved to our meeting."

As to the question of the commercial dumping fees, neither Necaie nor Fillingame could say how or when those fees would be calculated and paid.

Tuesday's election has four precincts

The Democratic special primary run-off election in the District Four Hancock County Board of Supervisors is set for Tues., Oct. 31.

The special run-off election includes four precincts and is between Steve Seymour and Tom Williams. The primary winner will face Republican Joey Manieri and Independent Doc Toups in the general election on Nov. 7.

The four precincts and polling locations for District Four are; Kiln West, Community Center, Hwy. 43; West Shoreline Park, New Community Center, Kiln-Waveland Cut-Off Road; City Hall, old Bay St. Louis City Hall, Second St.; and South Bay, Christ Episcopal School, 912 S. Beach.

The special election was set after a recent hearing before Brandon Circuit Judge John Toney.

The original primary run-off on Aug. 29 was won by Seymour. It was between him and Harry Farve, who was a distanced second after the first primary and Farve was followed closely by Williams.

Williams had contested the election's outcome and three votes were voided by Judge Toney and the second position ended in a tie.

A toss of a coin was used in court to settle the tie with Williams being declared in the run-off necessitating Tuesday's special election.

On Tuesday the polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Going for the win

Hawk QB Chad Peterson moves in for Hancock's game-winning touchdown in Friday's HHS homecoming contest against Bay High. (Photo by Traci Bonney)

Hawks edge Tigers 28-27

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Hawk defense held to give Hancock High a 28-27 overtime victory in their homecoming match against Bay High Friday.

The two rivals traded TDs, tying the score at 21. The Hawks made the first overtime score, but the Tigers quickly answered with one of their own. A blocked PAT kick ended the game.

Hancock dominated on the ground, netting 14 first downs and 150 rushing yards to Bay High's 11 first downs and 96 yards. In the air, it was the Tigers with 200 yards passing to the Hawks' 186.

After the game, both teams gathered at midfield and prayed together, then congratulated each other once again for a game well played.

Hancock head coach Rocky Gaudin said, "I'm so happy that we won. We went out there and did what we had to do. I give all the credit to the players and the other coaches; if it weren't for their work, we wouldn't have won."

"At the same time I'm glad for us, my heart goes out to Bay High. They outplayed us for most of the game. I love both groups. They both played their hardest."

Bay High head coach Walt Esslinger commented, "I'm very proud of my kids; they played like champions. I especially thought the seniors really came through when they needed to come through."

"The team played a good game. Hancock also played a good match; I congratulate them."

Bay High scored halfway into the first quarter. Richard Benton ran in from the 20; Wali Shabazz added the extra point to make it 7-0 at the 5:45 mark.

Hancock answered in the second quarter on a flea flicker to Brent Ladner, who then hit Darrell Williams for a 30-yard TD strike. Chris Green's kick tied the score with 7:07 left in the half.

Green boosted the score for the Hawks 2½ minutes later when he pushed in from the 1-yard line. Mike Fejka added the kick to move the score to 14-7 with 4:58 to go.

There was no more scoring until 10½ minutes into the third quarter, when Tiger QB Jonathan Favre hit Reggie Williams for a 79-yard strike. Shabazz tied the score at 14 with 1:24 left.

The Tigers scored again in the final quarter on a run by James Benton from the 13. Shabazz found the mark again; the score was 21-14 with 4:32 left in regulation.

The Hawks tied the score at 21 two minutes later on the first play after a Tiger punt. QB Chad Peterson passed to Darrell Williams, who ran untouched for an 80-yard TD pass reception. Fejka added the kick.

The Hawks won the coin toss and started overtime on the 10-yard line. Peterson rolled back for a pass on the first snap, but instead kept for the score. Fejka's kick made it 28-21.

The Tigers took over on the 10, and scored on fourth and goal with a pass from Jonathan Favre to John Farve. Shabazz set up for the PAT kick, but the middle of the Hawk line blocked to end the game at 28-27.

Hancock ends its season 6-4, 4-2. Bay High (3-6, 1-4), hosts St. Stanislaus (3-7, 0-5) next Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Bay Youth Basketball registration

Bay Youth Basketball Association will hold open registration Friday, Nov. 3, 6-8:30 p.m. and Saturday, Nov. 4, 1-3:30 p.m. at the VCJ Community Gym on Old Spanish Trail (next to Police Department), Bay St. Louis.

All interested girls and boys between 7 and 18 are eligible to participate. Any students playing basketball for junior high or high school cannot participate in the league.

A $15 registration fee and a copy of a certified birth certificate are required.

Any persons interested in volunteering for coaches, referees, scorekeepers, or concessionaires may contact the league director, Robert (Chops) Williams at 467-9725 between 5-8 p.m.

SSC 'Meet the Team' night

The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaw basketball team will compete in an intrasquad scrimmage game Wednesday, Nov. 1, beginning shortly after 7 p.m. in the Brother Peter Memorial Gym on Booker Street.

The public is invited to meet the team, which is the defending Division Champion. Last year's varsity squad posted a 23-12 record under head coach Jay Ladner.

The season opener is set for Tuesday, Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. when the Rocks take on St. John High School of Gulfport.

Pass ends winless season

Special to the Echo

Pass Christian gave little for its homecoming crowd to cheer about Friday night, losing 45-0 to Purvis.

The Pirates ended their season 0-10. Purvis finished its regular season 9-1.

Curtis Young put the visiting Tornados ahead late in the fourth quarter on a four-yard run. Purvis added two more touchdowns in the second quarter to take a 21-0 halftime lead.

Orlando Dauntzler's 84-yard punt return for a touchdown put Purvis ahead, 28-0, with less than a minute expired in the third quarter.

The Tornados led 35-0 at the end of the quarter.

A losing cause

Correy Gex of St. Stanislaus completed three of 14 passes for 84 yards and one touchdown but it was not enough as the Rock-A-Chaws lost to visiting Picayune, 44-7. The Rocks are 3-7, having lost four in a row and seven of their last eight after beginning the season with two consecutive victories. (Photo by Joe Gex)

NASA helps recycle tires

Personnel with NASA's Technology Transfer Office (TTO) and engineers with Lockheed Martin Stennis Operations and Johnson Controls World Services Inc. at the John C. Stennis Space Center (SSC) have been working with Cryopolymers Inc. in St. Francisville, La., near Baton Rouge, to improve a process for recycling vehicle tires.

The process takes shredded tires, freezes them and separates the rubber from reinforcing steel belts and polyester fibers. It then produces a material called "crumb," which can be used in asphalt road beds and other items.

Anne Johnson, NASA technology transfer officer at SSC, and other Stennis personnel have been assisting Cryopolymers to incorporate cryogenics, or the science of using super-cold fluids such as liquid nitrogen or liquid hydrogen, into its recycling process. Stennis Space Center utilizes 70 percent of all liquid hydrogen used by NASA, and no other U.S. government facility uses as much liquid hydrogen as SSC.

As NASA's Center of Excellence for large propulsion systems testing, Stennis Space Center had the expertise in the handling and application of cryogenic materials. For this reason, Cryopolymers felt confident that SSC could assist them.

The most practical method of making crumb involves using liquid nitrogen to freeze the rubber to a temperature of -225 Fahrenheit. Stennis has been helping Cryopolymers adapt their equipment to work in these very cold temperatures, make better use of the cryogenics and refocus operations in the plant.

Since the company has only been in operation for a few months, and the liquid nitrogen used in their process is extremely expensive, Cryopolymers was anxious to learn how to reduce the amount.

Company personnel originally contacted Roy Keller, manager of the Louisiana Department of Economic Development Technology Transfer Office at Stennis Space Center, who introduced Cryopolymers to NASA technology transfer personnel.

Joe Kelley, Cryopolymers director of community affairs, said that since they began working with Stennis, not only have they cut down on the use of nitrogen, they have also been controlling their systems more efficiently.

"Stennis TTO personnel have been a blessing. The technology is there; the personality is there. We are purchasing equipment on their recommendations. That's how confident we are in them," Kelley said.

The crumb that is created from the cryogenic process can be broken down into various grades according to particle size. Large particle crumb, which is the easiest material to process, is of less value and is typically used as a component to improve the wearability of a road surface. It can also be reprocessed to mold products which require little strength but must be weatherproof.

Fine crumb can be worth between 35 cents to 70 cents a pound and can contribute to making more expensive items, such as new tires or agriculture hose, or mixed with plastics to produce culvert piping and bed liners for trucks.

For each pound of rubber that is processed, approximately 60 percent is reduced into crumb. However, the scrap metal and polyester residue, called "fluff," can also be incorporated into new products as a reinforcing fiber.

Most salvage industries have been in the business of crushing cars and recycling only the metal parts. Although companies had the means to break down tires, they were shredded and buried to prevent fire hazards and breeding grounds for mosquitoes in landfills.

The recycling industry has just recently caught on to recycling tires. But since they do not have ideal equipment or technology resources, the process turns out to be costly for the companies.

"Our learning curve has been extremely shortened," said Wayne Rodrigue, applications specialist with Cryopolymers. "We were trying things on our own. But it probably would have taken six months to a year of trial and error to come up with what we have learned from Stennis in 30 days."

The recycling of tires is beneficial in today's environmentally conscious society. The process not only has economic value, but it also helps reduce the disposal problem of a worldwide production of more than 300 million tires per year.

Cryopolymers is working toward reaching a production rate of 4,000 pounds of rubber per hour, which is more than 4,800 tires recycled a day. The company is also focusing on the production of extremely high-grade crumb material.

"The Cryopolymers project is a prime example of how NASA technology and expertise can benefit the public," Johnson said. "The results of such collaborations can include creation of jobs, increased profits and enhanced economic competitiveness for the United States."

Attending the recent SE Gaming Expo are Nancy Harmann, director, relocation and corporate services for Latter & Blum, and agents Hubert McMillan, Gulfport residential; Tom Pence, Gulfport residential; Paul Richard, Gulfport commercial; and Vi Blakewood, Bay St. Louis residential.

Latter & Blum agents seek national referrals

The recent SE Gaming Expo at the Coliseum in Gulfport may not seem the most likely place to find a real estate firm manning the booth. However, it is one of the many events that Latter & Blum Relocation supports throughout the Gulf South.

Latter & Blum, "the No. 1 Real Estate Company in the Gulf South," is a leader in corporate relocation with multiple connections throughout the world like Christie's Great Estates Network for luxury properties, PHH Market Services for group and individual moves, and many more.

Latter & Blum not only will handle local residential needs, but it also handles commercial sales and leasing, corporate group or executive moves, luxury property sales, military relocation, new construction and property management as well.

Myth and misconception on credit problems

This article addresses a variety of concerns that I regularly encounter working with individuals in credit trouble. It highlights some of the most common misconceptions and how to deal with them. Before the holiday pace accelerates, take time to evaluate whether some of these situations apply and how to address them. It could mean a much brighter and more prosperous new year in 1996.

 Not talking to creditors — bills and bill collectors will go away if I ignore them.

Unfortunately, they don't go away. Bill collectors become more aggressive when you ignore them.

Make a plan, then approach creditors. At the very worst, you will have a better idea what the creditor's intentions are. Most credit card companies have very specific guidelines on how and when they will accept reduced payments. Some even reduce finance charges. But you can only find out what those terms are if you approach the creditor.

 Putting off getting help — I'll do something after the holidays.

The sooner you contact a credit counselor, the more likely it is that he can help. After a garnishment has started and the house is in foreclosure, the counselor's hands may be tied. No one wants to be put on a strict budget just before the holidays — but it can reduce stress now and through the new year.

When should you get help? The standard guideline is to never spend more than 20 percent of take-home pay on consumer credit payments. Consumer credit is all non-mortgage personal debt. This includes credit cards, installment loan payments, even the car note. If you are over the 20 percent level, it is time for a strategy to lower debt.

 Creditors can do nothing as long as I pay them something.

If you don't pay according to the contract you have signed, the creditor can take legal action. Investigate your rights and don't operate on rumors. Though there are no debtor's prisons, many people don't realize that a bad check can be a criminal offense.

 The one who yells the loudest, can hurt me the most.

This is almost always the opposite of the truth. The one who yells the loudest often has no collateral to secure their loan and may know that pressure tactics are one of the few ways to collect.

Creditors with a house or car for collateral typically use fewer collection calls than unsecured creditors. Fear and stress can cause consumers to act without a plan and forego essentials necessary for the well-being of the family. Treat all creditors fairly, but pay essentials like car, home and basic necessities first.

 Consolidating into one payment will solve the problem.

It's possible to borrow yourself out of debt. Consolidating often postpones the crisis but it can also make the problem snowball.

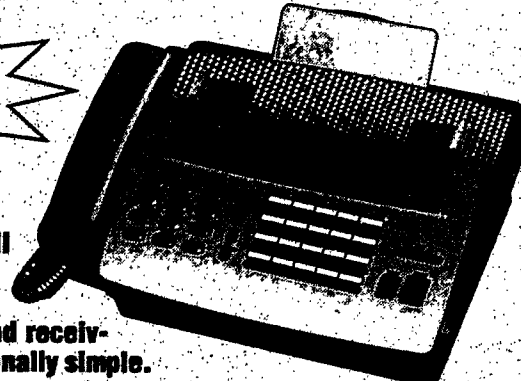

Solving credit problems requires a lifestyle change that includes planning a budget, tracking spending and cutting miscellaneous expenses. Cut down on $5 daily fast-food lunches and save as much as $1,825 a year. Track miscellaneous spending for two to four weeks.

 I work hard and deserve to spend my money the way I want.

It's true that we all need a few rewards along the way. But if you are spending more than you make, it is time to look at the cost of those rewards. The tradeoff for rewarding yourself in the short-term can mean short-changing yourself in the long-run.

Designed for small businesses, the Sharp FO-145 Fax makes sending and receiving faxes sensationally simple.

The new compact Sharp FO-145 Fax delivers ease-of-use, convenience and increased efficiency with features that were once only offered on high-volume machines.

Save time and money with a document feeder that handles up to 18 pages for unattended fax transmission and a speed of just 15 seconds per page. And you can instantly set quality as a standard with 32-level halftones to enhance your graphic images. Plus, with the 50-number auto dialer, sending quality faxes can be as simple as pushing a button.

Rich Receiver. This feature-rich fax will easily extend your communications capabilities. With Distinctive Ring Detection™, you can designate four different call sources on one single line to alert you to specific callers. And eliminate your management of incoming calls with the auto fax/phone changeover feature which switches fax transmissions immediately into fax mode. Or let the voice message interface link your answering machine and fax for automatic unattended voice or print coverage.

Compact Convenience. The slim, compact design of the Sharp FO-145 may surprise you. Packed within are many convenient, time-saving, easy-to-use features including a handy copy function, automatic contrast control, easy to read LCD panel with prompts, and more.

Save, Rich, Compact. The Sharp FO-145 is ideal for small office efficiency. When you combine all the features with the fact that Sharp has been America's #1 fax choice since 1987, it's hard to choose any other. And since Sharp offers a full line of faxes including thermal, ink jet and laser plain paper models, it's easy to select the perfect fax for your specific needs. Simply call today for a free demonstration and let this be the start of your sensational business communications.

Financial Focus

The basics of mutual funds

A recent letter from a reader reminded me that we spend so much time on the specifics of investing that the basics are sometimes overlooked. "What exactly is a mutual fund?" the reader asked.

The financial dictionary defines a mutual fund as a fund operated by an investment company that raises money from shareholders and invests it in stocks, bonds and other securities. But there is more to this story than the dictionary definition.

The first recorded mutual fund was established in 1822 in the Netherlands by King William I. The first mutual fund in this country was started in 1924 and still exists today. Funds eventually became so popular that toward the end of the Great Depression an intensive study was undertaken to establish laws that would protect shareholders from potential abuses.

From that study came the Investment Company Act of 1940. The act regulates investment companies by requiring them to register with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and strictly follow all federal laws and guidelines relating to securities.

As a result of the Investment Company Act, each mutual fund has a prospectus, which defines the fund's objective and limits the managers to specific investment parameters and risk levels. Therefore, one of the benefits of owning a mutual fund is professional management.

Diversification is another benefit of mutual funds. Most mutual funds typically own 100 or more different securities. Although diversification spreads your risk, it does not guarantee absence of risk. The market value of securities changes, so an investment that offers the potential for significant gains cannot simultaneously promise to be risk-free. When you share the rewards, you must also share the risk.

The share price of a mutual fund is calculated each business day. This price per share appears the following day in major newspapers across the nation. A quick check of your newspaper or a phone call to your broker lets you know exactly what your fund is worth that day.

If you wish to withdraw money, it's as simple as writing a check, making a phone call or having the money wired to your bank, depending on the mutual fund you own.

The fund must redeem your shares on any business day at the current market price, which could be higher or lower than the price you paid at purchase.

However, most mutual funds are designed to be held as long-term investments.

Today there are more than 5,000 mutual funds with about $2 trillion invested in them. USA Today has called mutual funds possibly the nation's favorite way to invest for the next century.

her mom's car.

"I could hear people talking around me, but I could barely speak," Carver remembers. "Blood was gushing from my head. I could barely breathe."

The mobile medics arrived at the scene, and Carver said she was later told it took half an hour to get her out of the automobile. Carver would later learn her sister suffered only some bruises and a broken nose, and her mom had some chest bruises. Both were wearing seat belts because Carver had preached to them before about the importance of wearing belts.

Carver was taken to Gulfport Memorial. Her husband, Steve, was notified, and rushed to the scene, then to the hospital.

The news was not good. Doctors told Carver his 25-year-old wife had suffered a spinal cord injury, and she was paralyzed from the neck down. Doctors there put Carver's head in stirrups, and gave her shots to stop the swelling. She was put on a ventilator to aid her breathing.

As soon as Carver was stabilized, she was airlifted by helicopter to Ochsner Hospital in New Orleans.

There, surgeons used bone from her hip to fuse three vertebrae in the central area of her neck. A plastic and metal device called a halo was braced around her neck.

Carver stayed about a week and a half in the intensive care unit at Ochsner, her husband and family keeping vigil at her side.

As soon as doctors determined the fusion worked, Carver was taken by ambulance to the Rehabilitation Institute of New Orleans (RINO) at the F. Edward Hebert Hospital in Algiers.

She was rolled in on her back, unable to walk, talk or breathe on her own. She had only slight movement in her left leg.

Carver, a devout Catholic, said she put her trust in God. "The first thing that came to my mind was that God was the only one who could heal me, and my faith helped to pull me through," she said. She said her family later told her that "people from every denomination were praying for me from Mississippi to Louisiana to Alabama."

Carver said the Lord answered her prayers by bringing her to RINO and providing the dedicated therapists who would work with her there.

"I thank God for James Cage and Jody Pasriagua," Carver said.

Connie Shuster, RINO's director of nursing, said the first goal was to wean Carver off the ventilator. A team of respiratory and rehabilitative specialists worked with Carver on special exercises to teach her to breathe on her own again. That process took about three weeks.

Cage, an occupational therapist, helped her exercise to strengthen her arms and hands.

"For some strange reason, before the accident, I had taught myself to write left-handed," Carver said. As soon as the strength returned to her left hand, she was able to feed herself.

Jody Pasriagua, a physical therapist, helped her exercise her legs and feet in order to strengthen muscles, which would allow her to walk again.

"It probably helped that I was in pretty good shape before the accident," said Carver. "I would run and bike once in a while, and I did some gymnastics when I had the time."

Carver said she apparently inherited some of her strength from her grandfather, Henry Lang.

Lang, 87, worked for years as a meat cutter at the local Jitney Jungle, and still tools around town on a bicycle.

Pasriagua worked on strengthening the muscles that had some movement, and one day, Carver decided she could walk with the aid of a walker. And, she did.

The exercise regiment continued, twice a day, for two hours each session. Carver would do sit ups and work on parallel bars.

She used special adaptive equipment to support her arms and hands.

"By about the last week of December, my recovery was amazing," Carver said. "By January, I was walking without a walker."

Carver returned to her Bay St. Louis home and husband in late February.

Her husband works at night, so is able to take Carver to outpatient therapy at Jo Ellen Smith Hospital in Algiers three days a week.

Carver's now feeding herself, dressing herself and putting on her makeup by herself. She's able to wash dishes, and write out checks to pay the bills. She goes outside often to check on the pet rabbits she raises in cages in her front yard.

And, last August, she started driving again.

Carver still has a way to go before being pronounced completely rehabilitated.

"I'm told most of my feelings should come back soon," she said, "but, right now, I can't tell hot from cold. I still have some swelling of the spinal cord, and that causes muscle spasms."

She's on medication for the spasms, which cause her arms to sometimes turn inward. She also has numbness and sometimes throbbing in her extremities.

"They usually occur in the morning, then go away by noon, but sometimes come back again around midnight," she said.

Carver has special empathy for actor Christopher Reeve, who recently sustained a spinal cord injury after a fall from a horse.

"I watched his first personal appearance on tv the other night," Carver said. "I think he will be a great source of inspiration for those going through similar trauma."

And what does the future hold for Dawn Carver?

"I may go back to work," she said, adding her friends at Casino Magic have been keeping up with her progress through her husband, and her father, Michael, who also works there.

She said the accident has not deprived her of the ability to conceive.

"I just might stay home and have children," said Carver.

"We'll just have to wait and see."

Warning --

Ghosts and goblins approaching

Halloween can mean hazards, unless drivers and parents take special precautions, according to AAA Mississippi.

"This is one holiday that can get kids really fired up, with the parties, costumes and all that candy," said Danon Jones, director of Public & Government Relations for AAA Mississippi.

"Motorists also need to consider the nature of kids. It's not unusual for kids to enter the street without looking and they're even more distracted on Halloween."

"Visibility can be a problem, too," Jones said, "for both motorists and kids. It's hard for drivers to see kids after dark, and trick-or-treaters may wear costumes that make them even more difficult to see. To make matters worse, masks can obstruct vision so kids can't see oncoming cars."

There is a lot that can be done to make Halloween safer, though. AAA Mississippi advises drivers to be extra alert for children darting out from between parked cars. And it's a good idea to turn on headlights at the first sign of dusk.

With so many children on the streets, a right turn on red can be risky, so motorists should use extra care when turning. An excellent rule of thumb is to drive at least 5 mph under the posted speed limit in residential areas.

"Parents should be sure their kids can see clearly," Jones said. "Enlarge mask eye holes and remind kids to remove masks before crossing the street. Better yet, encourage them to wear makeup instead of a mask. Makeup won't interfere with their vision -- and it's fun to wear."

Parents should accompany young trick-or-treaters or send an older brother or sister along. If someone older can't go, kids should plan their route before they go, trick-or-treat with a group and tell parents which streets they plan to haunt.

Children should trick-or-treat while it's still light and wear light-colored costumes that don't obstruct their vision. If kids must go out after dark, they should trick-or-treat on well lighted streets.

Here's a bright idea: carry flashlights or glow-sticks and maybe even a glow-in-the-dark candy bucket. Also, trim costumes with retro-reflective tape. Available at auto-supply, hardware and sporting goods stores, retro-reflective tape shines brightly in headlights.

Safety is the name of the game. Trick-or-treaters should be reminded never to dart out from between parked cars -- especially in the middle of the block -- and to walk on the sidewalk, not in the street. If there is no sidewalk, they'll be safer if they walk facing traffic and as far out of the road as possible.

Halloween costumes made fun...and cheap

It happens to almost every parent. Jimmy comes home from school and announces his invitation to a costume party in an hour. Or, the wife tells about a fun Halloween party then informs you that you will be making costumes. What's a person to do on such short notice or on a limited budget?

Rooth Varland, an assistant professor of theatre arts at the University of Mississippi and head of the department's costume program, advises would-be Halloween costumers not to panic. "Making a costume can be one of the most creative and enjoyable projects for parents and children, husbands and wives, and boyfriends and girlfriends," Varland said. "It doesn't have to be stressful."

In fact, with just a little pre-planning and thought, Varland says costumes can be fashioned out of everyday household items or from inexpensive supplies bought at a fabric store.

• Make it fun for the family. When creating costumes for children, get them in on the act, Varland says. "This is a great creative activity that parents can use to teach several skills." There are many opportunities for children, including picking out a design, cutting, painting, gluing and pinning. Involving the child also helps sell the idea of the costume.

• Ax the X-Men. Encourage children to come up with original costumes and discourage imitating a commercial character. Besides not being very creative, commercial characters are quite difficult to produce at home.

• Recycle ribbon; create with cardboard. Everyday items can spice up outfits: old cassette ribbon, or strips of toilet paper or plastic bags stapled or taped inside hats makes neat "weird" hair; fitted shoes sewn or pinned inside larger shoes then spray painted make goofy clown shoes; spray-painted plastic containers make air tanks for spacemen or appendages for aliens; cardboard covered with glue-soaked felt and painted silver makes armor.

• Be inanimate. Although it may take more creative energy, Varland suggests creating costumes representing inanimate objects. Try attending a party as a bouquet of flowers or mount a frame around your face for a self-portrait. Don't put off fittings and go out and have yourself a great Halloween!

Christmas Seal Campaign

Since its founding 90 years ago, the American Lung Association has recognized the toll lung disease can take on children and has worked to educate the public on preventing and treating breathing problems.

This holiday season, the American Lung Association of Mississippi will focus on children and lung disease during its annual fundraising Christmas Seal Campaign.

The 1995 Christmas Seal Campaign focuses on "Kids Helping Kids Breathe Easier." As part of the campaign, children nationwide will participate in the American Lung Association's Christmas Seals Kids' Drawing Contest for exciting prizes and a chance of having their artwork be an official part of the Christmas Seal Campaign.

The 1994 winning drawings are featured on a composite sheet of Christmas Seals that will be mailed to 30 million homes nationwide for decorative use on letters and packages.

For information and entry forms, contact the American Lung Association of Mississippi at 601-362-5453 or 1-800-737-5453.

Local production to open Nov. 10

The Bay St. Louis Little Theater announces its upcoming production of "A Rose In The Moon," a new musical with music and lyrics by Bay St. Louis resident and well-known Coast musician Jim Ballard.

The music is based on a story by Meridian resident Jimmy Smith with libretto by Ray Kutos, owner of The Antiquarian and a Pass Christian resident.

The musical tells the story of a teenage girl who has grown dissatisfied with her looks, her name and her life. She falls asleep and awakens in an ancient kingdom. Here she discovers that she is a princess, but no one in the kingdom can remember her name because a curse was placed on the kingdom by a jealous wizard.

Through her interaction with the people of the kingdom, the girl comes to accept herself and to appreciate those who love her.

The production directed by Ray Kutos, opens Nov. 10 and continues Nov. 11-12, 17-19 and 25-26 at the Bay St. Louis Little Theater, 301 Boardman Avenue in Bay St. Louis. Curtain is at 7:30 for evening performances and 2 p.m. for Sunday matinees.

Tickets are on sale at The Mississippi Gallery, 125 Main Street in Bay St. Louis, 467-5070. For mail order, call 467-4314.

First Jesus Fest

Mount Chapel Baptist Church, Herlihy Street in Waveland, the Rev. H. Dunn, pastor, will sponsor its First Jesus Fest Nov. 4 beginning at 11 a.m.

Theme is "Yes, There is Hope." Youth choirs, drill teams and soloists have been invited.

Activities include a yard and plant sale, hat decorating contest, games, arts and crafts. Special guests will include the Waveland Police Department and Officer McGruff of the Bay St. Louis Police Department.

There will be food, candy, cakes and lots of fun. Admission is free.

For information, contact Ethel Harrington at 467-4912 after 6 p.m. (donations accepted) or Ethel Simpkins at 466-3901.

Meditation retreat Nov. 5

The Granthi Buddhist Association is sponsoring a silent meditation retreat beginning Saturday, Nov. 4 at 11:00 a.m. and concluding at 2 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 5.

The retreat will be in Pass Christian. The public is invited. Food is provided, and there is no charge for the retreat.

Granthi Buddhism is not a religion and you are not required to be a Buddhist to attend.

Retreats consist of a series of meditative presentations alternating with contemplation/reflection periods.

Author visits Bay Middle

James Rice, well-known writer and illustrator of a total of 33 titles, recently visited students at Bay Middle School. Mr. Rice's best-known work would be Cajun Night Before Christmas. Rice discussed his books and showed students how to turn a doodle into a work of art. Pictured are Rice and Diane Spraberry, principal of Bay Middle. The event was co-sponsored by Bay Middle PTO and Bookends, Bay St. Louis.

Diamondhead revival

The Diamondhead United Methodist Church will hold its fall revival Nov. 3-5. Everyone is invited to attend and hear guest evangelist, the Rev. Van Carpenter.

Carpenter, a native of Moss Point, is pastor of the Main Street United Methodist Church in Bay St. Louis and of the Waveland United Methodist Church in Waveland.

He is currently serving his 27th year as pastor on the Mississippi Gulf Coast. Other churches he has served are Leggett United Methodist in Biloxi, Nugent United Methodist in Gulfport and Wilson Springs United Methodist in Jackson County.

Rev. Carpenter is a graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi and the Candler School of Theology at Emory University. He and his wife, Joann, are the parents of a daughter.

World Communion Day will be observed at the service Friday, Nov. 3 at 7 p.m. in the Diamondhead Community Center. A nursery will be available. Refreshments will be served following the service.

The service on Saturday, Nov. 4 at 4 p.m. will be in the form of a covered dish fellowship supper hosted at the home of a member of the Diamondhead congregation.

The Sunday morning service Nov. 5 at 9 a.m. in the Diamondhead Community Center will be observing Holy Communion and Baptism. A special communion offering will benefit the Seashore Mission in Biloxi. A nursery will be available.

For details about the revival, call 255-6888.

WEDDINGS

VanHoose-Scianna

Miss Linda Ann Scianna was married on Saturday, September 30, to Mr. William Robert VanHoose at the Main Street United Methodist Church in Bay St. Louis. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Van Carpenter.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Charles C. Scianna of Bay St. Louis and the late Beverly Favre Scianna. She was given in marriage by her father.

Mr. VanHoose is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Schwengler of Cleveland, Tenn.

The bride wore a gown of imported silks, lace and pearls. The delicate modified sweetheart neckline was trimmed by two rows of pearls. The treatment was echoed on the short, cap-sleeves of the gown. The bodice was richly covered in exquisite rembroided Alencon lace that was heavily accented by hand-set pearls, seed pearls and iridescent sequins. On the back of her gown, the beaded lace was accentuated by silk-covered buttons, which descended into three hand-formed roses nestled above a romantic triple bow. The gown was finished by a demi-cathedral-length train. Her chapel-length veil of silk illusion was held in place by a spray of pearls. She carried a hand-tied bouquet of open pink roses and Queen Anne's lace. The bride also wore a diamond cross pendant, a gift from the groom.

Miss Julie Scianna of Bay St. Louis served as her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mary Ann Benvenuti of Bay St. Louis and Mrs. Danita Luttrell of Bay St. Louis, sisters of the bride, and Mrs. Sarah Morris of Slidell.

Best man was John Vales of Chicago, Ill. Groomsmen were Jonathan VanHoose of White Oak, Pa., Kurt Schwengler of Cleveland, Tenn., Chuck Scianna of Pasadena, Texas, and Kenneth Scianna of Houston, Texas. Ushers were Stephen Scianna of Picayune, Peter Scianna of Bay St. Louis and Paul Scianna of Kansas City, Mo.

Nuptial selections were provided by Mrs. Mary Howard and vocalist Mrs. Vicki Scianna of Houston. Miss Stephanie Scianna, niece of the bride, was flutist.

A reception followed at the Diamondhead Community Center.

After a wedding trip to Florida and Switzerland, the couple will live in Heltersberg, Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robert VanHoose.

Haggerty-Crow

Mr. Jerry Crow of Bogalusa, La., and Ms. Susan Crow of Diamondhead, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, J. Suzanne Crow of Tuscaloosa, Ala., to William M. Haggerty of Tuscaloosa. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Haggerty of Gautier, Miss.

The bride-elect is a 1990 graduate of Hancock North Central and a 1994 graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi, where she earned a bachelor of arts degree in journalism and history.

She is managing editor and assistant news editor of the USM paper, The Student Printz. She is employed as direct mail coordinator at Pace Learning Systems Inc. in Tuscaloosa.

The prospective groom is a 1986 graduate of Pascagoula High School and a 1991 graduate of the University of Southern Alabama with a bachelor of science in banking and finance. He is employed as a systems analyst at Hunt Refining Company in Tuscaloosa.

The wedding will take place November 19 at 2:30 p.m. at the Ocean Springs Community Center.

It's the next best thing you can do for your city.

It could be argued that the best thing you can do for your city is to work for and vote for the right people to provide leadership. It could also be argued that the next best thing is to vote yes for the Franchise Agreement that will be voted on in your city in November.

Mississippi Power Company currently has a Franchise Agreement with your municipality. For almost 25 years, we've worked under this agreement to provide a portion of the revenues generated within the municipality to the city. This money is used to help pay for the goods and services the city provides to you.

We've built a solid partnership. Working together, we've helped build a strong and vibrant economy. We've focused on the lifestyle that is important to us while building better lives for ourselves. This agreement does not decide who services this area with electricity. It does, however, establish the level of support we can provide to your local municipality. Please vote yes. It's the next best thing you can do.

Like the Morgans, Kathy and her husband Bob have been active members of the Boaters since moving to Diamondhead in 1989. The Woods, who came from Dallas, Texas, have five children and nine grandchildren.

Kathy and Bob co-chaired the first Boaters' Golf Scramble. She is currently serving a two-year term as vice commodore. She was a board member, secretary and vice president of the Diamondhead Community Association.

For two years she was chairman of the Fourth of July parade and was actively involved in seeing that the Fitness Trail became a reality. She served on the Newcomers Board holding the positions of second vice president, first vice president and president.

As queen of Kamehameha, Woods will be served by her Lady-in-Waiting Mrs. Jim (Pat) Outlaw and Maid Mrs. Larry (Elaine) Smith.

The coronation of the king and queen-elect will take place at the Krewe of Kamehameha's Twelfth Night Ball Jan. 6 at the Diamondhead Country Club. This 12th day of Christmas traditionally opens the carnival season.

Study abroad course

The University of Southern Mississippi's College of International and Continuing Education will begin offering students Modern French History as a study-abroad option in May 1996.

The new program, directed by Dr. Doug Mackaman, assistant professor of history at USM and a modern French history scholar, will feature three weeks of study based in Paris.

Modern French History will give students a chance to research and learn from French experts while becoming totally immersed in the French culture, said Dr. Tim Hudson, dean of the college of International and Continuing Education.

Mackaman, in his second year at USM, said France is emerging as "one of the major players in Europe" in the modern world. Modern French history — roughly 1789 to the present — offers a student chance to study how many forces — art, literature, politics, economics — have combined in modern France, he said. Field trips to significant French sites will add to the student's perspective, he said.

"The program is based in Paris, which has been and remains one of the most thriving, vital cultures in the world," Mackaman said.

Modern French History in 1996 is a three-week program running from May 11-June 2.

The program is $2,499 for undergraduates — which covers credit hours, tuition, field trips, airfare, lodging and other essentials.

For information of the Modern French History program or on any of USM's study-abroad or exchange programs, call (601) 266-4344.

Business Review

Advertorial

EMSI is a National Health Services firm with 170 company offices nationwide, employing more than 5,000 medical professionals.

We provide health screening services to a large, diverse clientele. Since the company's inception in 1974, we have been the industry leader in health services due to our corporate commitment to quality and excellence; and because of our nationwide network of offices, EMSI can often function as a single source of service to companies with locations throughout the country.

Kathy Turan, a native of Gulfport, has embarked on a business venture serving the Mississippi Gulf Coast and surrounding areas with Examination Management Services, Inc. or EMSI, provides insurance paramedical examinations, occupational health testing and drug screening.

She has 11 years of experience in the medical field and three years of experience exclusively with paramedical exams. She has established a rapport with several major insurance companies in the area.

EMSI employs six medical examiners. Kathy hopes to make EMSI one of the leading medical examiners in South Mississippi. She wants to strive to make her business a success and an asset to the community.

Kathy's hobbies include fishing, sewing, crafts and interior decorating. Stop by her office for a visit and a cup of coffee, where her creativity and sparkling personality have engulfed her new office.

EMSI is located at 1308-A Pass Road in Gulfport. The phone number is (601) 868-4046.

Peter Anderson Festival set for November 4 and 5

Families continue to be an important ingredient of the 17th Annual Peter Anderson Festival Saturday, Nov. 4 and Sunday, Nov. 5. Many activities are planned to make the weekend a special family event — there is something for everyone, and admission is free.

The festival, named in honor of the late Peter Anderson, a master potter and founder of Shearwater Pottery, brings hundreds of selected artists and craftsmen from across the South to display and sell their unique arts and crafts.

Events planned for the two-day festival include:

Ocean Springs Art Association: The 24th Art Exhibition in the Ocean Springs Community Center on Washington Avenue includes painting and sculpture of over 100 artists on display and available for purchase. The murals of Walter Inglis Anderson are a permanent part of the Community Center. Admission is free.

Walter Anderson Museum of Art: The exhibit, "Peter Anderson, A Potter's Legacy" will be open to the public. Admission is free on festival days. Children's art activities 10 a.m.-noon on Saturday.

For children only: At the Little Children's Park, located on Washington Avenue and Calhoun, will be a variety of activities designed especially for children, sponsored by the Ocean Springs Parks and Recreation Department.

Volkssport: Two non-competitive 10K walks and one 25K bike ride will take place. Do any or all at your own pace.

St. Alphonsus Fall Festival: Carnival rides, games and entertainment for the whole family. Dinner served Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Food, food and more food: A variety of local and international taste treats, including red beans and rice, gumbo, tempura, gyros, shrimp po-boys and much more.

Entertainment: Located at the L&N Depot and Marshal

Park — bands playing a variety of music will highlight each day's activities. Libby Rae Watson will play in the afternoon on Saturday, followed by an evening concert at 5 p.m. in Marshal Park featuring Jerry Fisher and the Music Company. Admission is free.

Fort Maurepas Society: Living history — relive the days when French-Canadians and Frenchmen lived and died at the original Fort Maurepas 1699-1702. The fort, located at the foot of Washington Avenue, will host events to include raising of the colors, French arms drill, cannon volley, musket volley, demonstrations by traders, gunsmith, carpenters and others — all in period costume.

'Forever Plaid' opens Tuesday

Community Concerts opens its 47th season Tuesday, Oct. 31 with "Forever Plaid," a smash off-Broadway revue on its first national tour.

Doors for the 7:30 p.m. sold-out performance open at 6:30 p.m. at Biloxi High School Auditorium.

Due to the popularity of this show, Hancock County members are reminded to come early for best seating and parking.

The Plaids, boy-next-door types, sing pop hits from the late 50s and early 60s. They have names like Sparky and Jinx and wear plaid dinner jackets with matching cummerbunds and bowties. Perry Como is their hero. They stop the show with a zany parody of one of Ed Sullivan's "Really Big Shows."

Variety Magazine touts them as "the best nerdy doo-wops around," and their show is reminiscent of the popular "Nunsense," which also began life as a cabaret revue.

"Plaid" has wowed world leaders at Washington's Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and guests at the Flamingo Hilton in Las Vegas.

New Orleans cuisine offered at Festival UNO

Fine cuisine is among the highlights at Festival UNO, an event celebrating the offerings of the University of New Orleans. Festival UNO, a free event that is open to the public, will be held noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 4 at the UNO Lakefront campus main quad.

Eleven area restaurants will provide samplings of their food during the festival, while three celebrity chefs, Jason McDonald, Curtis Moore and Patrick Schellenberger, will be demonstrating and sharing their culinary talents.

Chancellor Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien said the food offerings are in keeping with the spirit of the University of New Orleans: "Culinary examples are an important component of Festival UNO because this university offers a nationally known degree in Hotel, Restaurant and Tourism, and because fine food is an integral aspect of the greater New Orleans community."

Jason McDonald, who received his education in culinary arts in Australia, is the proprietor and executive chef at Jason's, which opened in 1994. McDonald has been listed as one of the top 2,000 Chefs in America, and has won numerous silver medals in culinary competitions.

Curtis Moore, co-owner of The Praline Connection, boasts that his formal training was not in the classroom, but in his mama's kitchen. Moore opened the Creole-soul restaurant along with Cecil Kaigler in 1990, and the restaurant's menu is based on old family recipes taken from three generations of Moore's family.

Patrick Schellenberger has been the head chef of the Chateau Sonesta Hotel since it opened last April. Schellenberger received his diploma in hospitality from Acaca of Lyon, Republic of France, as well as a certificate of professional aptitude in classical cuisines from Belle Garde Lep Culinary School in France.

In addition to the appearance of the celebrity chefs, 11 food booths will also be set up. Restaurants participating in sponsoring food booths are Domino's Pizza, Jack Spratt's Vegetarian Grill, Kentwood Water, Lucky Dog, Mrs. Drake Sandwiches, Mr. Mudbug, New Orleans Crawfish Company, Outback Steakhouse, Rally's, Smoothie King and Subway.

Chinmeyville crafts festival

The Craftmen's Guild of Mississippi Inc. announces a weekend of arts and crafts represented by 170 artists from all over the country at the Mississippi Trade Mart on the Fairgrounds in downtown Jackson.

Festival hours are Dec. 2, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. and Dec. 3, noon-5 p.m. For information, call 981-0019.

Protect your children from harm on Halloween, by following these simple, common sense safety guidelines:

- 1 An adult should accompany each group of trick-or-treaters.
- 2 Attach bright reflective patches to all costumes to be more visible to drivers.
- 3 Accept candy only from neighbors you know.
- 4 Never allow your children to eat any unwrapped candy or fruit.
- 5 Make sure the costumes allow for free movement and breathing.
